

Dr. sc.ing. Ugis Cabulis is Director of Latvian State Institute of Wood Chemistry, head of Polymer Laboratory.

Dr. Ugis Cabulis graduated Latvian University in 1986, and received his Dr degree in 1993, at Latvian State Institute of Wood Chemistry, after this he has worked in the polyurethane industry for more than 30 years, covering all aspects: from science to practical coordination of National and International research projects. His scientific topics are: polyurethanes from renewable raw materials and polyurethane foams as cryogenic insulation. He was a partner in the FP7 projects FORBIOPLAST, BIOCORE, EVOLUTION, BIOPURFIL, BBPM and coordinator of bi-lateral project with European Space Agency and also ArianeGroup GmbH on insulation of new generation Ariane launcher. He has 66 publications in Scopus, his H-index = 14.